Madison Redevelopment told housing next big priority

BY BOB DEMAREE

With plans underway to construct 183 housing units at the Residences at Sunrise Crossing, Madison Mayor Bob Courtney told the city's Redevelopment Commission on Tuesday that Madison hilltop project is just the beginning of a greater focus on housing development in the city.

Courtney estimated that Madison is currently working on 20 projects — ranging from parks to roads to infrastructure — but he expects the city's priorities will shift away from project management later this year and more toward housing development.

"Our focus for the next several years is really going to be housing development. That is the one thing holding our community back now," Courtney said. "It's been over 25 years since there's been any meaningful investment in housing in our community, and we are positioned for growth sans the housing."

That focus is currently on the Residences at Sunrise Crossing but the future will include "looking across the city of Madison and Jefferson County to see where we can partner to develop more housing."

Tony Steinhardt III, the city's economic development director, said housing is an issue that's challenging local employers as they seek to hire new workers. He cited a recent Leadership Jefferson County meeting in which "housing was a top priority for every organization" that participated. "We certainly know that housing continues to be in tight supply here."

Steinhardt said legislation is currently being considered by the Indiana General Assembly "to help communities of our size to tackle that in creative ways." One possibility is House Bill 1005 that would allow local governments to apply for money to help pay for infrastructure costs with new housing such as streets, sidewalks and utilities.

Historic Madison Inc. President/Executive Director John Staicer reported at Wednesday's annual meeting at HMI's Shrewsbury-Windle House on the recent completion of a first-ever, in-depth study of HMI's Judge Jeremiah Sullivan House. The report will serve as a guide on what restoration work might eventually be pursued at the historic site.

Historic Madison Inc. now has detailed study of Sullivan House

Staicer says report can guide future restoration

BY BOB DEMAREE

A first-ever, in-depth study of the historic Judge Jeremiah Sullivan House is now complete, preparing Historic Madison Inc. to determine future restoration of the property, HMI President John Staicer announced at Wednesday's annual meeting.

Meeting at HMI's historic Shrewsbury-Windle House, Staicer said the 700-page historic structures report provides a full-scale architectural historical and engineering study of the circa 1818 house where Jeremiah Sullivan and his family lived for more than 70 years.

Bob Demaree

Kevin Yancey was elected chairman of the Historic Madison Inc. Board of Directors at the Board's meeting on Wednesday, April 5.

"Since we just received the report, it will take us some time to digest all the findings," said Staicer, noting that until that's done he can't say what restoration work might eventually be pursued at the local historic site.

The study was funded by grants from the Jeffris Family Foundation, the Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County, the Morgan Family Fund and anonymous donors. "The goal of the study was to gather every bit of information about the house, its condition and its history into one living document to help guide the future development and use" of the Jeremiah Sullivan House.

The house, purchased at auction in December 1960 by HMI, is recognized nationally for its architectural design and preservation. The Sullivan family and its descendants have played important roles in local, state and American history. Jeremiah Sullivan, who was an Indiana Supreme Court Justice, is credited with suggesting Indianapolis as the name for Indiana's capital city. One son, Jeremiah Jr., was a Union general during the Civil War. Algernon, another son, founded Sullivan & Cromwell in New York City, which today one of the world's leading law firms.

"Architects, engineers and historic paint analysts spent many months researching and exploring through every nook and cranny of the property looking for clues about its original construction made by the Sullivans and later owners during its 200-plus-year history," Staicer said.

Staicer said the study determined the home was built all at one time but the northern portion was demolished in the 1870s or 1880s. He said there appears to have been little or no wallpaper in the years the Sullivans lived in the house. "Apparently they applied coats of whitewash year after year to keep the house painted," he said.

A new custom copper roof was installed on the Sullivan House in the past year to replace a leaking 1962 roof along with new gutters, Staicer said.

City facing busy period for road improvements

Multiple projects could lead to months of work

BY BOB DEMARE AND MARK CAMPBELL

With the new Shoppes at Sunrise Crossing development likely to bring even more traffic to one of the busiest and most dangerous intersections on Madison's hilltop, the city of Madison and Indiana Department of Transportation are moving forward with a long overdue project to redesign and reconfigure the intersection of Michigan Road and State Road 62.

Marc Rape, of Strand Associates, is serving as the consultant project manager. He was at an informational meeting last week to talk to the public and to answer questions about the work that will be done.

Rape said the impetus for the project is the fact that 33 crashes have occurred at the intersection over a three-year span. "The higher than expected crash rate is the primary reason for the proposed improvements," Rape noted, adding that a road safety audit back in 2016 had

Bernard was born September 12, 1937 the only child to Floyd D and Louise (Porter) Addleman on the family farm near Dupont, Indiana. He attended Dupont Elementary and Lovett school in his early years and proudly graduated from Paris Crossing in 1955.

He met the love of his life, Claris Green, on a blind date and they were married June 29, 1957 in Wirt Baptist Church. They worked side by side on the family farm while he also worked at Cummins Engine Company. He retired from Cummins in 1987 after 31 years. He was a quiet jokester, always up for a good laugh. Bernard was also a veteran serving in the Indiana National Guard and Army Reserve for 8 years.

His father instilled in him a solid, honest work ethic as they worked together on the family farm and he passed this on to his children. He loved farming and his cattle. He was always on the move and would tell his kids that if you stand too long in one place, the grass will grow under your feet. In his early years he loved to coon hunt with one of his best friends, Benton Harrison, and the Harrison boys. Later in life, he and his good friend, Bruce, loved to fish and they spent hours waiting on benches while their wives shopped. Bernard and Claris loved to spend time in Renfro Valley listening to bluegrass music. He enjoyed visits from his family and when they were leaving, he always told them "look both ways."

He was a Deacon and active member of Bible Baptist Temple for over 40 years. He loved his church and church family. If the doors were open, he was there.

Bernard will be dearly missed by his loving wife of 65+ years, Claris Ann, his daughters, Sherry (Tim) Bodenberg, Marlene (Kevin) Orrill, Bernie Sue (Jeff) Sones, his son, Dwight (Rita) Addleman and granddaughter/caregiver, Elizabeth (Greg) Keys.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, April 7, the 97th day of 2023. There are 268 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 7, 1984, the Census Bureau reported Los Angeles had overtaken Chicago as the nation's "second city" in terms of population.

On this date:

In 1862, Union forces led by Gen. Ulysses S. Grant and Maj. Gen. Don Carlos Buell defeated the Confederates at the Battle of Shiloh in Tennessee.

In 1915, jazz singer-songwriter Billie Holiday, also known as "Lady Day," was born in Philadelphia.

In 1922, the Teapot Dome scandal had its beginnings as Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall signed a secret deal to lease U.S. Navy petroleum reserves in Wyoming and California to his friends, oilmen Harry F. Sinclair and Edward L. Doheny, in exchange for cash gifts.

In 1945, during World War II, American planes intercepted and effectively destroyed a Japanese fleet, which included the battleship Yamato, that was headed to Okinawa on a suicide mission.

In 1949, the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "South Pacific" opened on Broadway.

In 1954, President Dwight D. Eisenhower held a news conference in which he spoke of the importance of containing the spread of communism in Indochina, saying, "You have a row of dominoes set up, you knock over the first one, and what will happen to the last one is the certainty that it will go over very quickly." (This became known as the "domino theory," although Eisenhower did not use that term.)

In 1957, shortly after midnight, the last of New York's electric trolleys completed its final run from Queens to Manhattan.

In 1959, a referendum in Oklahoma repealed the state's ban on alcoholic beverages.

In 1962, nearly 1,200 Cuban exiles tried by Cuba for their roles in the failed Bay of Pigs invasion were convicted of treason.

In 1966, the U.S. Navy recovered a hydrogen bomb that the U.S. Air Force had lost in the Mediterranean Sea off Spain following a B-52 crash.

In 1994, civil war erupted in Rwanda, a day after a mysterious plane crash claimed the lives of the presidents of Rwanda and Burundi; in the months that followed, hundreds of thousands of minority Tutsi and Hutu moderates were slaughtered by Hutu extremists.

In 2020, acting Navy Secretary Thomas Modly resigned after lambasting the officer he'd fired as the captain of the USS Theodore Roosevelt, which had been stricken by a coronavirus outbreak; James McPherson was appointed as acting Navy secretary.

Ten years ago: A fierce battle between U.S.-backed Afghan forces and Taliban militants in a remote corner of eastern Afghanistan left nearly 20 people dead, including 11 Afghan children killed in an airstrike and an American civilian adviser.

Five years ago: Opposition activists and local rescuers said at least 40 people were killed in a suspected poison gas attack on the last remaining foothold for the Syrian opposition in the eastern suburbs of Damascus.

One year ago: The Senate confirmed Ketanji Brown Jackson to the Supreme Court, shattering a historic barrier by securing her place as the first Black female justice and giving President Joe Biden a bipartisan endorsement for his effort to diversify the high court. In a Senate package targeted at stopping the coronavirus, U.S. lawmakers dropped nearly all funding for curbing the virus beyond American borders, a move many health experts described as dangerously short-sighted.

Let Us Pause To Honor the Memory of Mr. Bernard Francis "Bernie" Kasper

Mr. Bernard Francis "Bernie" Kasper, age 60 of Madison, Indiana, entered this life on January 24, 1963 in Madison, Indiana to parents William Martin and Doris Mae Ricketts Kasper. A life-long resident of the Madison community, Bernie graduated from Madison Consolidated High School in 1981. During his high school years, Bernie worked at Crystal Beach in downtown Madison as a lifegaurd. Unlike most career profiles, his first full-time employment stint, which entailed the Jay-C Food Store (Rulers) in downtown Madison, spanned 37 years and ended with Bernie advancing to manager. While there, Bernie found much more than groceries, produce and managerial responsibilities. He met the love of his life who became his future wife. On April 8, 1989, Bernie was united in marriage to Amy Kaye Cheatham at St. Mary's Catholic Church in downtown Madison. This union of 33 years was blessed with two sons, Noah and Isaiah. Bernie currently worked in the Environmental Service Department at Norton King's Daughters' Health. In addition, the creative artist also owned Bernie Kasper Photography for many years. Thousands of beautiful landscape scenes fill his flash drives, computer hard drives and albums and much to the community's delight he gladly shared those masterpieces publicly. For Bernie, the camera served only as a recording tool which anyone could operate. Because he knew where to stand, how to frame, when to shoot and why miniscule detail mattered, his photographs exuded unparalleled perspective, emotion and depth. In essence, his works conveyed stories without words. When Bernie did lay his camera aside, he enjoyed hiking and watching sports, especially the Louisville Cardinals and Purdue Boilermakers. On foot, Bernie covered hundreds of miles in the Smoky Mountains, Clifty Falls State Park, and the Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge. Like his passion for photography, he shared his affinity for sports with the community as well. He helped coach Southwestern High School boys' and girls' basketball programs for many years and assisted with the Scottsburg High School girls' basketball program too. During his tenure with the Southwestern girls' program, the team merited state championship honors in 2002 and state runner-up status in 2003. In his later years, Bernie became an avid environmentalist and was often asked to share his knowledge of photography, wildflowers, and butterflies. Up until his death, Bernie worked on local environmental beautifications and other educational offerings. Bernie was a member of the Prince of Peace Catholic Church and he had a firm faith in God and Jesus Christ. He was a volunteer firefighter at Fair Play Fire Company No. 1 in downtown Madison in his late teens and early twentys. Bernie was contacted by the Grateful Dead to use one of his trillium flower photographs for one of their box set's cover art. It is on their "Spring 1990 -The Other One", box set. He was a devoted husband, a loving dad, and a faithful friend. Bernie died on Sunday, March 26, 2023 at 8:30 a.m. at his home in Madison, Indiana.

A LOVING FAMILY

Bernie will be missed by his loving wife of 33 years, Amy Kaye Cheatham Kasper of Madison, Indiana; his son, Isaiah Kasper (Megan Benner) of Madison, Indiana; his sisters, Margaret Short and her husband Bill of Henryville, Indiana, Karen Lykins and her husband Kenny of Sadieville, Kentucky, and Linda Mitcheltree and her husband John of Peidmont, South Carolina; his half sisters, Pauline Taylor of Savannah, Georgia, Mary Ann Eubank of Clarksville, Indiana; his father and mother in law, Daniel "Dan" and Joyce Cloud Cheatham; his sister in laws, Louann Stockdale Kasper of Madison, Indiana, Sharon Williams and her husband Steve of Marathon, Florida, Rebecca McManis and her husband Joshua of Port St. Lucie, Florida; his cousin and best friend, Joe and Schrhonda Zubaty of Warsaw, Kentucky; and several aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews and cousins. He was preceded in death by his father, William Martin Kasper, died June 8, 1996, his mother, Doris Mae Ricketts Kasper, April 30, 1986, his son, Noah Daniel Kasper, died December 8, 1997, his brother, William J. Stress and its Effect on Longevity. Could an Annuity Help You Live Longer?

"Layin' it on the line"

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

Stress is a common and natural response to challenging situations, and while some stress can be beneficial, chronic stress can have a negative impact on our health and wellbeing. Studies have shown that stress can contribute to a variety of health problems, including high blood pressure, heart disease, and even premature death. Stress can also have a negative impact on our mental health, leading to depression, anxiety, and other mood disorders.

One way in which stress can impact our longevity is by contributing to the development of chronic diseases. Chronic stress can lead to a state of constant physiological arousal, which can cause damage to the body over time. This can contribute to the development of conditions such as cardiovascular disease, diabetes, and cancer, which can ultimately lead to premature death.

Moreover, stress can impact our mental health, which can in turn, have a negative impact on our physical health and longevity. Chronic stress can contribute to the development of mood disorders such as depression and anxiety, which have been linked to a variety of negative health outcomes, including an increased risk of cardiovascular disease and premature death. Moreover, stress can lead to unhealthy coping mechanisms, such as overeating or substance abuse, which can further contribute to negative health outcomes.

In addition, stress can impact our behaviors and lifestyle choices, which can significantly impact our health and longevity. People who are experiencing chronic stress may be more likely to engage in unhealthy behaviors, such as smoking, excessive alcohol consumption, or a poor diet. These behaviors can contribute to the development of chronic diseases and can ultimately lead to premature death.

However, it is important to note that not all stress is created equal, and some types of stress may be more harmful than others. For example, chronic stress related to social isolation or lack of social support may be particularly harmful, as social isolation has been linked to various negative health outcomes, including an increased risk of premature death.

All individuals respond to stress in the same way, and some people may be more resilient to the negative effects of stress than others. Factors such as genetics, personality, and life experiences can all impact how an individual responds to stress.

An annuity may help someone live longer by reducing financial stress. Financial stress can have a negative impact on physical and mental health, and studies have shown that people who experience financial stress are more likely to have poor health outcomes, including a shorter lifespan. By providing a steady income stream, an annuity can help reduce financial stress, improving overall health and potentially increasing longevity.

Peace of mind and a sense of security can accomplish much when dealing with stress. Knowing that there is a guaranteed income stream can reduce anxiety about the future and provide a sense of stability. This can lead to lower stress levels and improved mental health, which can positively impact longevity.

Additionally, annuities can be designed to provide an income for life, even if a person lives longer than expected. This can be particularly beneficial for people without other retirement income sources or are concerned about outliving their savings. Annuities can also provide a predictable income stream that is not subject to market fluctuations.

However, it is important to note that annuities are not a one-size-fits-all solution and may not be suitable for everyone. Stress and relief from stress can positively affect your health; maybe an annuity could be part of that solution.

HOUSING

"We have had conversations with developers, and we've had some interest in some unique things in the community, although interest rates and the economy has sort of slowed that discussion down in last four or five months," said Steinhardt.

"Hopefully, with new tools that the state will come around with" if they get through the Indiana General Assembly, "we can bring that conversation back to the forefront by mid-summer," Steinhardt added.

One affordable housing project is already in the works at Habitat for Humanity's new Clifty Woods neighborhood where there will be a groundbreaking on Thursday, April 20. The Redevelopment Commission committed $150,000 to provide the infrastructure necessary to create building lots for the subdivision. Besides being near three other Habitat homes on Green Road, the subdivision is also in close proximity to the Habitat's Restore property on Lanier Drive. The city's infrastructure work on the subdivision will include streets, curbs, storm sewers and other utilities to develop six homes on a cul-de-sac.

At its meeting in March, the Redevelopment Commission approved a resolution to take the first step toward creating a new City of Madison Riverfront Allocation TIF (Tax Increment Financing) district. The new TIF district would remove the riverfront parcels from the North Madison Economic Development Allocation Area, to create a new TIF area.

Steinhardt said Reedy Financial Group, the city's financial consultant, recommended that the decrement analysis be done to look at parcels throughout North Madison allocation area and their value. "They believe that going through that process does make financial sense for the commission, and will increase our revenue by doing that," he said.

Work will take place on that over the next month, with the new TIF district to go before the city's Plan Commission and City Council for consideration in June, which both must give approval for the proposal to move forward.

In other discussions, Steinhardt updated that development of the new Culver's restaurant on property at Clifty and Franks drives is expected to move forward soon. "We are waiting for the final agreement with Culver's in their real estate signing before we execute the agreement on the construction," he said.

ROAD

indentified the intersection as a problem with Indiana Department of Transportation recognizing that public safety funds should be sought to address the safety issues.

Since that time, the dynamics of that intersection have changed even more with the construction of Shoppes at Sunrise Crossing and upcoming Residences at Sunrise Crossing as well as the city of Madison diverting all heavy truck traffic from Main Street onto Clifty Drive (State Road 62). Fortunately, the plan worked on back then is still valid today so the project can move forward without further study and changes.

"To my knowledge, it has not changed anything with this plan, but I do think it makes it less likely the district would downsize this project based on local concerns," Rape said. "That increase of traffic certainly is only going to make the situation worse, and it's a pretty sizeable development."

The project, anticipated to cost approximately $750,000 with a bid opening scheduled for Aug. 9, will include upgrades to traffic signals and equipment, and the extension of concrete medians on the north, south and west legs of the intersection in order to eliminate left-turn movements on State Road 62. Once done, INDOT expects it will eliminate conflicts with vehicles turning into oncoming traffic ahead of the intersection and reduce collisions.

Construction is likely to begin Oct. 2 and end by Dec. 1, which could see that work follow the city's project to develop a new intersection and traffic lights at nearby Crestwood Drive as promised in the recruitment of the Sunrise Crossings development.

Tony Steinhardt III, the city's economic development director, said the INDOT project will not impact construction that's currently underway at the Shoppes at Sunrise Crossing. Construction is well underway for Hobby Lobby, TJ Maxx and Five Below and work is slated to begin this month on a Kohl's department store.

"No impact," Steinhardt said of the impact. "We had worked with the state to coordinate the work and the traffic on Michigan Road last summer."

Steinhardt stated Friday that no official open dates have yet been set for the new retail businesses.

Approximately 20 people were in attendance at INDOT's informational meeting with a few business owners expressing concerns about how the work would impact them and their customers.

> Madison mayor

Rape noted that access to all businesses and properties will be maintained throughout the construction period. However, the intersection improvements will require closure of the middle lane in each direction while maintaining a single lane in each direction plus a dedicated eastbound left turn lane to northbound Michigan Road.

At the same time, motorists in Madison should plan for a long summer and fall of traffic issues based on the number and scope of projects scheduled to take place.

Madison Deputy Mayor and Chief of Staff Mindy McGee provided a report to City Council on Tuesday indicating that an increase in road projects should be expected this year and for the next few years.

Hanging Rock Hill (which is also State Road 7) is scheduled for a closure beginning April 11 and lasting as long as October to make slide corrections that are undermining the highway and to replace or upgrade utilities that are also impacted. That work could be completed by July 25 but INDOT has set aside until October should the work prove more time consuming.

The official detour for the project is US 421 and State Road 62 but many local motorists are likely to divert to the Michigan Road hill and both routes are likely to funnel more traffic into the Michigan Road/State Road 62 intersection construction zone.

Madison had already planned a road resurfacing project for Michigan Road this summer from the base of the hill to the Sunrise Crossing site and has plans to repave Main Street to the top of Hanover Hill once grants are allocated in the next couple of years. In addition there are sidewalk, street crossings and roadway reflector projects on tap.

Jefferson County government, which maintains all local bridges in the county, will begin addressing three bridge improvement projects on Main Street in Madison — one at the railroad incline, another at Crooked Creek and a third near the entrance to Clifty Creek State Park and Indiana Kentucky Electric Corporation's Clifty Creek Power Plant — that will cost about $9 million with bids anticipated in 2027 and construction in 2028.

"Coordination is the key on how this impacts us as the state, county and city are all doing projects and all will come together at the same time," said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney. "It's great that were having this much investment in infrastructure improvement but it's going to involve some major coordination."

McGee said the city is prepared to do its part to lessen the impact of so much road work whether that's shifting work schedules when possible or providing officers to help direct traffic as necessary. "It might be that we do our Michigan Road project last," she said, which would take some of the pressure off but also extend the overall time for completion of all work.

City names new parks and recreation director

BY THE COURIER STAFF

The city of Madison has hired a former director of operations at Hanover College who's background also includes facilities management and maintenance, hospitality and capital improvement as the new director of Madison Parks and Recreation.

Scott Klein, of Madison, was introduced at Tuesday's meeting of Madison City Council after beginning work on Monday. He replaces Matt Woolard, who resigned earlier this year and left the job at the end of March. Klein joins the city at a time when managing and maintaining the city's 23 park properties in terms of maintenance, investment and budget considerations is central to the job.

"I am pleased to welcome Scott to our team. Scott has the facilities management and budgetary expertise we need to lead our major initiatives, such as expanded programming, capital investments, and operational improvements," Madison Mayor Bob Courtney said in a statement. "Recreation for all ages and abilities is so important to the quality of life in Madison, it is imperative that we make strategic investments to enhance our system, and I believe Scott will be an asset to our city."

Scott Klein (pictured) was introduced as the City of Madison's new Director of Parks & Recreation at Tuesday night's meeting of Madison City Council. Klein, who was selected in a national search and picked from a group of four finalists, begins the job immediately.

"I am extremely grateful for this opportunity to serve as the next director of parks and recreation for the City of Madison. I'm excited to lead the department into its next generation, providing new and exciting sports and recreation programs for all residents while updating and improving our existing programs and dynamic parks," said Klein. " I appreciate the mayor's confidence in me for this role, and I look forward to working with the mayor, Parks Board, Golf Course Board, and the citizens of Madison as we grow."

Klein said his focus will be on developing programs with appeal and benefits for residents of all ages and abilities while also managing the park system's resources and properties in an efficient manner.

Klein previously served as director of facilities and grounds for the Penland School of Crafts, where he was responsible for the execution, overall direction, coordination, and evaluation of the school's 60 structures and 415 acres. He also worked to develop and implement short and long-term budgets for maintenance and capital improvements.

Klein then served as director of operations at Hanover College, where he had broad oversight over campus operations, including building and grounds, housekeeping, maintenance, event management, fleet management and athletic event support.

Most recently, Klein was a project manager, where he obtained bids and approved contracts with architects, sub-contractors and structural, mechanical and civil engineers in addition to temporary laborers for new construction and renovation projects.

Madison is currently involved in several major projects that will expand and diversify the city's parks portfolio including a multi-million rebuild of Crystal Beach Aquatic Park, completion of upgrades to Oak Hill Park on the hilltop and similar upgrades to Gaines Park in downtown Madison. The city is developing a new gateway park near the Milton-Madison bridge, new park facilities at the Kindness Mural and Mulberry Corridor, investing in its recreational vehicle campground along the Ohio River and making parking improvements near Bicentennial Park as well as working with the Riverfront Development Committee on a new Super Overlook on Vaughn Drive.

As director of parks and recreation, Klein will work closely with the mayor, parks board, golf board, community leaders and the parks department team to promote the quality-of-life initiatives happening throughout the parks. He will work to establish priorities, execute the five-year plan, and offer new programming to the families and individuals in our community.

COUNTRY

Moore takes his cues from the founding fathers of the genre — Waylon Jennings, Willie Nelson, David Allen Coe and George Jones — all of whom he's shared stages with at various points during his nearly 30-year career. He also cites the influence of the Allman Brothers Band, Lynyrd Skynyrd and the Marshall Tucker Band, artists he's also had the pleasure of performing alongside.

A lot of tickets have already been sold for this show, but there should still be a few left at RedBicycleHall.com.

Then there's another high-profile country talent coming to Red Bicycle, this one on April 15. Pete Schlegel has been touring and recording for more than 20 years. Music is actually his second career, having worked as a state trooper and an EMS helicopter pilot.

In 2002 Pete hit the big time with a song called "It Takes a Whole Lot of Liquor to Like Her" which charted in the U.S. and Europe. "It didn't hurt that Hank Williams Jr. recorded the song also, so the success of the song just kind of magnified," explains Pete.

"I was sitting at home and my daughter, who was 10 at the time, answered the phone and then called out, Dad, it's MTV on the phone! I thought maybe it was a joke, but they wanted to add it to their Country mix. Then GAC and CMT also picked it up, and things started popping for me.

"I had charted songs before, but Liquor to Like Her took it to a whole new level. I recently completed my sixth album. And I have a new song called 'Glasses' that premiered on March 1st and it's been getting some play time on CMT and other streaming services."

I asked Peter how he happened to have a show scheduled in Madison. "Well, when I was flying EMS helicopters up in northern Indiana, we often flew out of Rochester. That's where I met Brent and Catherine Evans."

Brent and Catherine are the dynamic duo who moved to Madison a couple years ago and opened Sallie's Small Batch Ice Creams and the Madison Music Studio. They are also the musical duo Jhonny & Sallie, who will be opening for Pete Schlegel.

"We are pretty much straight ahead country," says Pete. "Not the outlaw stuff. We are more of the high energy, honky tonk, good time type of band. Lots of drinking songs. Cheatin' songs. All the stuff that great country music is known for. If you come out to the show I guarantee you'll have a great time."

If you want to see a sample of Pete's music, just go to YouTube and search "Pete Schlegel Glasses." Tickets to the show on April 15 are available at RedBicycleHall.com.

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

As an owner of Red Bicycle Hall, I get a lot of email inquiries about upcoming shows and questions about the best places to stay and eat in Madison. I had a long back and forth with a nice person named Darcy coming to the Dallas Moore show on Saturday. When I asked her where she was from, she told me the Cleveland, Ohio area. She said they loved Dallas Moore and spent a lot of weekends going to see his shows. Which highlights two things. First, the significant economic impact of being Indiana's Music City, with the number of people who come to town and spend their money to enjoy our amazing music scene. And secondly, the fact that us residents can enjoy these amazing music shows right in our own backyard! Don't take it for granted, it is truly something special.

Meanwhile, Staicer reported the Schroeder Saddletree Factory Museum reopened last year after repairs were completed from damage caused by flash flooding in 2021. He said the factory museum features newly updated exhibits that include in-house design, construction and installation with the assistance from a Schroeder Foundation grant. A free virtual reality tour has also been created of the saddletree factory.

HMI also partnered with last summer's inauguaral Madison Wild West Rodeo, which Staicer said is an obvious connection. "The Scroeders made over 300,000 frames for riding saddles, and undoubtedly some early rodeo cowboys used saddles" that were made at the Saddletree Factory.

Staicer also noted that HMI had donated the large lot on Poplar Street, south of First Street, to the city of Madison to assist with ongoing riverfront development improvements. The property, which was once the location for a planing mill and a button factory, had only remains of the foundation from th 1850s building after a fire at Birl Hill's boat shop in the 1950s.

He also said that community volunteers led tours for more than 6,000 visitors through HMI properties during special programs and regular toursin 2022. Volunteers also gave free architectural walking tours, researched, sorted and cataloged artifacts.

Tony Steinhardt III was elected to the HMI board of directors and in the board meeting after the annual meeting, the following officers were elected to one year terms — Kevin Yancey, chairman; Staicer, president; Lisa Cutshall, vice president; John Muessel, treasurer; and Jill Wiest, secretary.

Staicer said HMI's youth programs are returning this year after being discontinued during the height of the COVID-19 pandemic. Heritage Days for fourth graders in Jefferson County will take place towards the end of the school year and Archi-camp, a hands-on daily camp program, is set for July.

Armbrecht's walk-off powers Madison to win over Seymour 6-5

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Ava Armbrecht drove in the winning run in the bottom of the seventh to lift Madison to a 6-5 walk-off softball win over Seymour on Monday at home.

Armbrecht, who was also the winning pitcher, came to the plate after Bailey Owens had doubled and Cam Mann was intentionally walked. She delivered by lacing a 1-2 pitch into center to score Owens with the winning run.

Madison led 5-0 after Mann hammered a two-run home run in the second and added a two-run double in the third but Seymour answered with five runs in the top of the sixth to tie the game. Armbrecht then kept the Owls at bay until the seventh when the Cubs pulled out the win.

Armbrecht allowed four earned runs on six hits in seven innings with seven strikeouts and three walks to pick up the win. She was also 2-for-4 with two RBIs

Mann was 2-for-3 with four RBIs and two runs scored, Molly Armbrecht doubled and scored twice and Kallie Eder had a hit.

Madison, now 4-1 on the season, traveled to Trimble County on Thursday and hosts Silver Creek on Friday. The Cubs then host Jennings County on Monday and head to Jeffersonville on Tuesday.

PACERS BEAT AUSTIN

Emily Oatman swung a strong bat and was dominate in the circle to lead Switzerland County to its first win of the season, 14-1 at home against Austin on Tuesday.

Oatman was 3-for-3 with a triple, a double, three RBIs and three runs scored at the plate and also allowed just one earned run on three hits in five innings in the circle with eight strikeouts and a walk.

Madison bats come alive in a 15-0 pounding of Greensburg

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Madison pounded out 12 hits — six for extra bases — and pitchers Liam Murphy and Ashton Carie combined for a no-hitter as the Cubs pounded Greensburg 15-0 in their home opener on Tuesday.

After going scoreless in the first inning, Madison scored in each of the next three and quickly turned the game into a rout.

Nick Johnson and Clint Hearne each drove in runs as Madison scored two in the second. The Cubs then came alive for nine-run third inning.

Ben Orrill smashed an RBI triple off the batters' eye in center field, Drew Forner and Craig Demaree each followed with doubles, Zander Vonch had an RBI single and Colin Yancey had a run-scoring single as Madison built a 9-0 lead. Orrill then capped the nine-run inning by belting a two-run home run to left in his second trip to the plate in the frame.

Madison added four more runs in the fourth to cap the scoring.

That offense was more than enough for Murphy, who was perfect through four innings with five strikeouts. He gave way to Carie who allowed a baserunner on an error, but struck out one to complete the no-hitter.

Vonch was 2-for-3 with a double, three RBIs and two runs while Yancey had two hits and scored twice. Mitchell Cammack added an RBI.

Madison, now 2-2 on the season, hosted Austin on Thursday and travels to Southwestern on Friday. The Cubs then host Floyd Central on Tuesday.

TENNIS ROUNDUP

Southwestern opens season with win over Trinity

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Southwestern rallied from deficits in three matches to post a 3-2 win at Trinity Lutheran in the Rebels' tennis season opener Tuesday in Seymour.

The Rebels trailed early in nearly every match but rallied to post wins at No. 2 singles, No. 3 singles and No. 2 doubles to claim the win.

"The girls just hung tough and battled at every position, fighting Trinity and 35 mph winds," Southwestern coach Kenny Garrett said. "We lost six of our top seven players from last year's 19-3 team and it will take some time to find our groove."

Only Ava Barnes, at No. 3 singles, had a relatively easy time, knocking off Sam Enzinger 6-2, 6-2. But every other match was a battle.

Emma Hatton dropped the opening set in her No. 2 singles match to Siddha Hall, 6-3, but then claimed 6-1, 6-1 wins in the next two sets for the victory. Raygan Crawford and Kaylee Hite needed a tiebreaker to win the first set of their No. 2 doubles match but then pulled away for the 7-6 (7-5), 6-2 win over Nat Martinez and Emily Keller.

Syrenia Hardy battled at No. 1 singles before falling 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 to Drew Hubbard while Autumn Gross and Natalie LaRue lost 7-5, 3-6, 6-3 to Kiley Zabel and Carson Bowling at No. 2 doubles.

"First season for Raygan as a player and she has improved quickly. Kaylee, along with Emma and Ava, are all freshmen and have stepped right in for us," Garrett said. "There will be some hills and valleys this season with the youth we have but the next four years look really bright for us."

Southwestern was scheduled to travel to South Dearborn on Wednesday, but that match was postponed due to severe weather. The Rebels travel to South Central on Friday and compete in the Paoli Invitational on Saturday. Southwestern then heads to Shawe on Tuesday.

SHAWE BEATS MUSTANGS

Shawe picked up its first win of the season with a 4-1 victory at New Washington on Tuesday.

The Hilltoppers swept all three singles matches with Lauren Grote beating Madison Brown 6-0, 6-0 at No. 1, Sarah Willhite defeating Macy Fields 7-6 (7-5), 6-2 at No. 2 and Kelly McClure beating Liv Lawrence 6-2, 6-3 at No. 3.

In doubles, Autumn Lathrem and Carson Cooke dropped a 6-4, 7-6 (8-6) loss to McKenna Donaway and Violet Higdon at No. 1 but Julia Leatherman and Megan Morrison defeated Kathleen Donaway and Alicia Huffman 6-2, 4-6, 6-3 at No. 2.

"It was a good night for us to get a win after how we started the season last night (against Greensburg)," Shawe coach Steve Sims said. "With that being said, we have a lot to work on. I have no doubt that we can be a tough team to deal with as the season goes on. We just have to keep getting better every day."

Shawe, now 1-1 on the season, travels to Milan on Monday and hosts Southwestern on Tuesday.

CUBS FALL TO BROWNSTOWN

Madison suffered a 5-0 loss at Brownstown in the Cubs' season opener on Monday.

In singles action, Ruby Willoughby lost 6-2, 6-4 at No. 1, Maylie Skinner fell 6-0, 6-1 at No. 2 and Avery Clayton lost 6-0, 6-1 at No. 3. In doubles, Riley Poling and Claire Slygh lost 6-4, 7-6 at No. 1 and Michelle Laguna-Rafael and Bridgett Boles lost 6-4, 6-1 at No. 2.

Madison, now 0-1 on the season, had its match on Wednesday postponed due to severe weather. The Cubs traveled to Lawrenceburg on Thursday and host Salem on Friday before competing in the East Central Tournament on Saturday. The Cubs then host Trinity Lutheran on Tuesday.

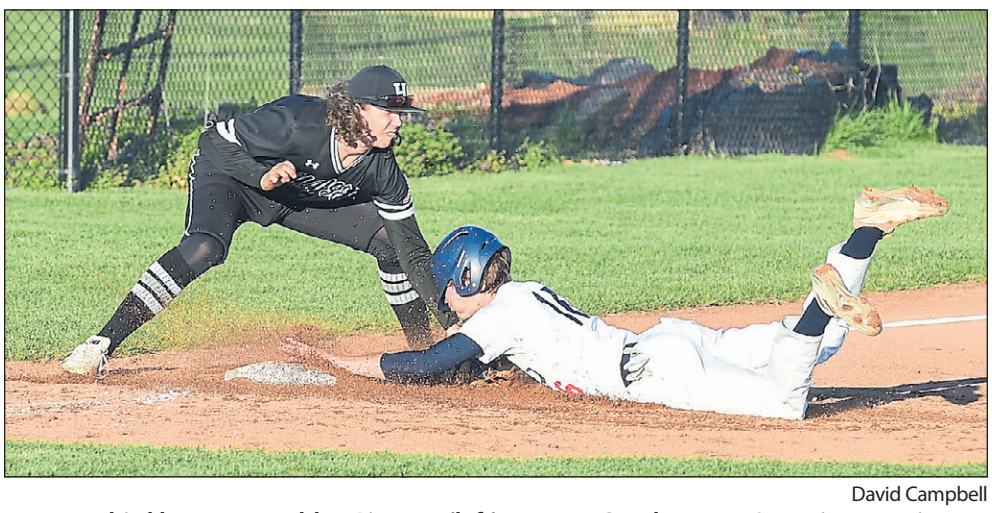
Hauser, Silver Creek score late to drop Southwestern to 0-3

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Southwestern played well but couldn't get hits when needed in a pair of losses to Hauser and Silver Creek this week in baseball.

On Monday, Hauser managed only three hits but scored runs in the fifth and sixth innings to post a 3-1 win over the Rebels. On Tuesday, Silver Creek used three runs in the fifth to pull out the 7-4 win.

Sophomore pitcher Adam Traylor was fantastic against Hauser but ended up pinned with the loss. The southpaw allowed just one earned run on two hits in five innings and struck out seven, but seven walks proved to be his undoing.



David Campbell

The two teams traded runs in the first inning with Southwestern getting its run when Jordan DeAtley doubled and came home on William Stockdale's RBI single to right.

The game remained tied at 1-1 until the fifth when a walk and an error allowed Hauser to score a run and take a 2-1 lead. The Jets added a run against reliever Barron Welsh in the sixth.

Southwestern also hurt itself on the bases. A double-play on a flyball to right ended the Rebels' fifth inning and a runner was thrown out trying to steal third for the final out in the sixth. Southwestern went down in order in the seventh.

Southwestern out-hit Hauser 5-3 with Stockdale going 2-for-3 and Traylor and Austin Jenkins adding hits.

Southwestern took a 2-1 lead in the third inning of its game with Silver Creek when Traylor laced a two-run double to left to score DeAtley and Jamison Lewis.

Silver Creek answered with three runs in the fourth and three more in the fifth to take a 7-2 lead. The Rebels tried to claw back, scoring a run on a RBI single by Jenkins in the fifth and a DeAtley home run in the sixth, but the game was called after the sixth due to darkness.

DeAtley was 3-for-4 with two runs scored while Traylor had two doubles and two RBIs. Braxton Lewis and Stockdale added hits for the Rebels.

DeAtley allowed six earned runs on 10 hits in five innings and took the loss. Stockdale struck out two in a perfect inning of relief.

Southwestern, now 0-3 on the season, hosts Madison on Friday and hosts Rising Sun on Monday.

Kansas' Self feels good after scare, plans to keep coaching

BY DAVE SKRETTA
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

Bill Self said he's doing well after a health scare kept him from coaching Kansas in the Big 12 and NCAA tournaments last month, and he reiterated Wednesday that he has no plans to step away from the Jayhawks any time soon.

Self spoke to reporters for the first time since March 8, when he went to an emergency room after a final shootaround for the conference tournament. He was complaining of chest tightness and concerns about his balance, and the 60-year-old had two stents placed to help treat blocked arteries at the University of Kansas Health System.

"To be honest," Self said, "I haven't done a lot since the Big 12 Tournament. But I'm exercising almost daily. I don't know if you guys believe this: They told me that I need to improve my diet and exercise more."

"But I feel fine," the Hall of Fame coach continued. "My energy level is probably back to where it was prior to the episode but not where it's getting ready to go, I believe. I think sometimes we don't realize we don't feel well until we actually feel well and know the difference. And I'm in the process of feeling well again, so I'm excited about that."

Longtime assistant Norm Roberts guided the Jayhawks to the Big 12 title game, where they lost to Texas. They still received a No. 1 seed for the NCAA Tournament, thanks to their regular-season Big 12 championship and strong schedule, and easily beat Howard in the first round before losing a 72-71 nail-biter to eighth-seeded Arkansas in the second round.

Star freshman Gradey Dick has declared for the NBA draft, All-American forward Jalen Wilson has likewise announced his intentions to go pro, and Kevin McCullar Jr. is expected to join them.

Self helped run practices during both of the NCAA tourney games but decided against coaching on game day.

"I was never scared that I wasn't going to be OK. But it was a different feeling," he said. "I'm sure many have had it, but it was kind of like an out-of-body type experience that you really don't know what's going on. You have no control over what is going on. So it was something that I'd never experienced before, but it was never to the point where I felt like I was in danger."

Self did acknowledge that the health scare made him reevaluate his future in coaching.

"I think the last several weeks I've been able to reflect on a lot of things," he said. "The one thing I can tell you without question: I missed my job. I love my job and I want to do my job for a long time. That's what is positive."

"Now," Self said, "for me to be effective doing that, I think I have to wake up a little bit and maybe do some things from a lifestyle standpoint, a personal habit standpoint, that I've been very, very, very inconsistent with my entire adult life. And I said that jokingly earlier, can you imagine a doctor telling you to lose weight, eat right and exercise? I've been told that a long time, but I'm taking that serious for the first time I probably have in my life."

The Jayhawks, who are holding their end-of-season banquet Thursday, are poised to look much different next season.

Star freshman Gradey Dick has declared for the NBA draft, All-American forward Jalen Wilson has likewise announced his intentions to go pro, and Kevin McCullar Jr. is expected to join them. The Jayhawks also have had forwards MJ Rice and Zach Clemence, big man Cam Martin and guards Joseph Yesufu and Bobby Pettiford Jr. enter the transfer portal.

The Jayhawks have four high-level freshmen arriving next season, but Self acknowledged they need to work the portal.

"We've got work to do before we're a top-10 team, but I'm really hopeful within weeks everybody would say they should be ranked higher than a top-10 team," Self said. "I feel like we're in on some good kids."

McNally-Henriksen scores 100th but Hanover falls to Adrian in women's lacrosse

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Masi McNally-Henriksen became the sixth player in Hanover program history to reach the 100 goal milestone in the Panthers' 19-9 loss to Adrian in women's lacrosse Tuesday at home.

McNally-Henriksen, a junior from Zionsville, is the fastest player in Hanover history to reach the mark.

MASI MCNALLY-HENRIKSEN

Hanover found itself in a 4-0 hole less than 10 minutes into the game and trailed 10-3 at halftime. The Panthers mounted a rally, closing to within 15-9 early in the fourth quarter, but Adrian scored four-straight goals to close out the win.

McNally-Henriksen scored three goals and added two assists while twin sister, Taylor, had four goals and an assist. Abby Mensing and Katie Comer each had goals.

Marissa Bardo played all 60 minutes in goal and stopped 11 shots.

Hanover, now 1-5 on the season, hosted Thomas More on Thursday and heads to Franklin on Saturday.

BASEBALL FALLS AT FRANKLIN

Franklin finished off a three-game sweep of Hanover with a 13-11 baseball win at home on Monday.

Hanover managed nine hits in the game with Jacob Dupps going 4-for-6 with a double and two RBIs. Eric Roudebush was 2-for-4 with a triple, three RBIs and three runs scored, Reid Douglas had a hit, drove in a run and scored twice, and Keelan Dyson and Spencer Martinelle each had a hit, an RBI and scored a run.

Jaden Siemer was the fourth of five pitchers for Hanover and took the loss after allowing four earned runs on three hits in three innings.

Hanover, now 7-14 overall and 1-5 in the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference, begins a three-game series at home with Rose-Hulman on Friday. The Panthers host a single game on Friday then play two on Saturday.

Garcia chastises Masters to stop talking about LIV-PGA

BY PAUL NEWBERRY
AP NATIONAL WRITER

Sergio Garcia is tired of talking about the LIV-PGA Tour feud.

After opening the Masters with a 2-over 74, Garcia shot back at reporters who asked Thursday if this felt like a normal event with all that's going on away from the course.

"Totally normal," Garcia said. "You guys need to stop it. You guys are making a big deal out of this, and it's you guys."

When a reporter took issue with Garcia's comment, the Spaniard didn't back off.

"I've had nothing but great things from every single player I talk to," he said. "So please stop it and talk about the Masters."

Garcia, the 2017 Masters champion, was among 18 players from the Saudi-backed LIV tour taking part in the first major of the year, though the number quickly dropped to 17 when Kevin Na withdrew after playing only nine holes.

LIV Golf has doled out huge amounts of money to lure some of the game's best-known players away from the PGA Tour, a group that includes six former Masters winners including Garcia and three-time champion Phil Mickelson.

The formation of a rival tour has led to court battles and harsh words from both sides, though there were no outward signs of hostility at Augusta National.

The European tour, an ally with the PGA Tour, won a victory Thursday when an independent tribunal ruled it could sanction members who competed in LIV Golf without permission.

The PGA Tour also has suspended players who joined the rival tour without getting a waiver, though that doesn't apply to the four major championships.

Garcia said he was unaware of the ruling and declined further comment.

"How can I talk about something I don't know?" he said. "Obviously I don't look at the news. So I don't know what happened. I'm not going to talk about something without all the information that I need."

Purdue's Edey wins Wooden as top college hoops player

LOS ANGELES — Purdue center Zach Edey has won the John R. Wooden Award as the nation's top men's college basketball player.

The announcement was made Tuesday on ESPN.

Edey is the first Canadian-born winner and the second player from Purdue to be honored, joining Glenn Robinson in 1994.

The 7-foot-4 Edey is the first player since winner David Robinson of Navy in 1987 to have at least 750 points, 450 rebounds and 50 blocks in a single season.

Voting by a national panel took place from March 13-20 during early rounds of the NCAA Tournament. Purdue, a No. 1 seed, lost in the first round of the NCAA Tournament.

Caitlin Clark of Iowa won the women's Wooden Award. She led the Hawkeyes to the national championship game where they lost to LSU.

Edey and Clark, who were each named AP's national players of the year, will receive their awards Friday at the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

UConn emerges victorious after March Madness full of upsets

BY DAVID BRANDT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cinderellas certainly had their moments in this March Madness. More than a few, actually.

In the end, it was a familiar face that won the NCAA Tournament.

UConn — a No. 4 seed — beat No. 5 seed San Diego State 76-59 on Monday night in Houston for its fifth title in the past 24 years. The Huskies and coach Dan Hurley cruised through the tournament in impressive fashion, winning all six games by at least 10 points.

The Aztecs of the Mountain West Conference didn't go quietly, cutting UConn's lead to six points late in the second half before the Huskies used one more run to put the game away. It was San Diego State's first trip to the title game.

Before Monday night, college basketball fans enjoyed three weeks of great moments. Here are a few that stood out:

FAIRLEIGH DICKINSON SHOCKER

Little-known Fairleigh Dickinson — a private, commuter school in Teaneck, New Jersey — provided an early stunner, becoming just the second No. 16 seed to beat a No. 1 seed with its 63-58 win over Purdue.

Only in the NCAA Tournament field due to a technicality, FDU, which went 4-22 last season, won a First Four game in Dayton before the victory over the Boilermakers. FDU lost the Northeast Conference Tournament title game 67-66 but still received the league's automatic bid to the NCAA bracket because champion Merrimack remains ineligible for postseason play after moving up from Division II to Division I.

PRINCETON, TOO

Smart kids made it all the way to the Sweet 16 when Ivy League champion Princeton — a No. 15 seed — won not just one but two games in the tournament to advance to the second weekend.

The Tigers used a late-game run to earn their first NCAA Tournament win in 25 years, beating No. 2 seed Arizona 59-55 before a dominant 78-63 win over No. 7 Missouri.

TOP SEEDS BITE DUST

Purdue's loss to Fairleigh Dickinson was just the opening salvo in a tough tournament for No. 1 seeds.

The men's tournament did not have a No. 1 seed in the Elite Eight for the first time since seeding began in 1979.

Kansas bowed out in the second round, with Arkansas taking down the reigning national champion Jayhawks. Alabama, the bracket's No. 1 overall seed, succumbed in the Sweet 16 to San Diego State.

Later in the Sweet 16, Miami capped the No. 1 carnage with a dominant 89-75 win over Houston.

BUTLER'S BUZZER-BEATER

San Diego State's Lamont Butler hit a buzzer-beating jumper that will live a long time in college basketball lore, sending the Aztecs to their first national championship game with a 72-71 win over fellow mid-major Florida Atlantic in the Final Four.

The clock ticking down, Butler dribbled to the baseline, found that cut off and circled back. He stepped back to create a little room and hit a jumper that sent the Aztecs racing out onto the floor and had San Diego Padres fans going wild at Petco Park.

THAT WAS COOL

Kansas State's Markquis Nowell broke the NCAA Tournament record for assists in a game with 19, including one late in the game that was among the most creative in postseason history.

Nowell found Keyontae Johnson for a reverse alley-oop with 52 seconds left in OT to give the Wildcats the lead for good over Michigan State in the Sweet 16. Nowell appeared to be arguing with coach Jerome Tang right before the pass, catching the Spartans flat-footed in one of the most important moments of the game.

GREAT GAMES

There were a lot of great games in this year's tournament. Among the best: Gonzaga's 79-76 thriller over UCLA in the Sweet 16.

Julian Strawther hit a 3-pointer with 7.2 seconds left to answer a 3-pointer by UCLA's Amari Bailey, lifting Gonzaga to the wild win over the Bruins. The Bruins stormed back from an eight-point deficit in the final 1:05 and took a 76-75 lead on Bailey's 3-pointer with 12.2 seconds left before Strawther's shot.

NANTZ'S FINALE

Announcing legend Jim Nantz has called his last NCAA Tournament game.

The 63-year-old called his 354th and final tournament game on Monday night when UConn beat San Diego State for the title.

Here's his call of Saturday's buzzer-beating shot by SDSU's Butler in the semifinals. Nantz estimates he's had 20-something such last-second winners over his years in the tournament.

"It's Butler. With 2 seconds. He's gotta put it up. Aaand. He wins it! He wins it! With the jumper!" Then, 5 seconds of silence, followed by, "A San Diego State miracle!"

Today's Puzzle Solved

Online match becomes a Cyrano situation

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I have met a number of friends online, especially since Covid.

One of these friends is a guy I became attracted to. He makes me laugh, he's kind, and I genuinely have a good time talking to him. Although we had been friends for the better part of a year, our communication was only over text. While he had seen photos of me, I had no idea of what he looked like.

I don't consider myself to be a shallow person. I have always believed it's what's on the inside that counts.

Well, we finally video chatted last night, and I have no attraction to him at all. I tried convincing myself that the lack of attraction wasn't a big deal, but I couldn't do it.

There's nothing wrong with the way he looks, he's just a lot older than I thought and drastically different from what I pictured.

I feel like a terrible person and have been berating myself all day.

How dare I suddenly dislike this wonderful guy who I had a great connection with over such a tiny reason?

Honestly, I also feel embarrassed for having gotten my emotions involved without knowing anything about him.

I don't want to hurt him, especially since the reason behind it is so petty and would be so harmful if he knew. Am I a terrible woman? — Prospecting

Dear Prospecting: This dynamic is the very reason I push for in-person (or video meeting) as soon as possible, when people are crushing online.

Start by watching whatever version of "Cyrano" you can gain access to.

You aren't being petty; you aren't being terrible, you're being human.

You're already friends with this man. Now that you've de-crushed, you should guide this relationship back into the friend zone.

Retired teachers not fans of loan forgiveness

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I belong to a group of nine women who are all retired teachers of various ages. We have met monthly for 35 years.

We started this group because, although we worked for the same school district, several moved to different schools, and this was a way for us to stay connected.

In the past we have been respectful, loving, and supportive toward each other. Lately I have not been feeling the love, and I am devastated.

At our last meeting I announced, very proudly, that my daughter (also an educator) received loan forgiveness of $52,000.

My daughter has two master's degrees and has been working with children for 20 years. She has paid promptly on her loans for 10 years now, and this debt forgiveness is truly a blessing.

When I mentioned this news — my goodness, you would have thought I told them she'd robbed a bank!

All but one person (who I had told earlier and was very supportive), expressed their opinions about the loan forgiveness program and how they were against their tax dollars helping my daughter.

I think I would have had a nicer reaction from a stranger at the supermarket.

It is still raw. How do I heal? — Upset Teacher

Dear Upset: This episode has revealed the unfortunate dynamic created for some people when they learn about someone else's windfall.

It's not pretty.

Respect, love and support are sometimes much more easily offered toward someone who is hurting.

You've also stumbled into first-hand knowledge of how some people are responding to this life-changing debt forgiveness program.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may be happy to try new activities on for size. When you are a trailblazer who rocks the latest trends, other people could imitate your sense of style. You might be the main character in a game of "follow the leader."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You are likely doing well and easily managing the unexpected or unusual. Play the game of life and show off your high scores in bright lights at the top of the board. You may face some jealousy when you are the brightest star.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Your thirst for information may be quenched by drinking from a fountain of knowledge. Listen to respected authorities on a favored subject or check out a recent book. You do not need to spend money to hang out with trusted and amusing friends.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Acting on your instincts can help you make your next event one to remember. Romantic relationships can move along at an exhilarating pace, but watch for important red flags if someone is too possessive or stirring up jealousy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Someone might rely on you for wise advice or mentoring. A mellow atmosphere may make it a wonderful time for singles to go out and try the latest dining or dancing hot spot. Family get-togethers might be more appealing for couples.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Positive outlooks and high spirits can go hand in hand. Cheerful moments with a good friend or romantic partner can offer a chance to recuperate from intense business exchanges. A tricky workplace problem could be a current headache.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Drum up some enthusiasm and you may find someone to go along with you on out-of-the-ordinary outings. You might land in the spotlight and need a companion by your side. Fresh places and new faces can lend some excitement to your day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Experience fun and exhilaration everywhere you go if you indulge in your taste for trendsetting entertainment. You may get to have some alone time with a romantic partner or enjoy a relaxing staycation with a close friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Put plans in motion that you may have had on hold. You should have the determination and the support you need from well-wishers to reach your goals. Someone may give your morale a boost by praising your work ethic or talents.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You could be lulled into a false sense of security. Analyze your risks before you make a change. You can certainly trust the people you know and love but be cautious if your money is in the hands of strangers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — It is possible that some budget shortfalls stem from following the wrong advice, or from a lack of paying attention. This might be a suitable time to change tactics and adopt a more detailed and comprehensive financial plan.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — A few hours of being together may have you floating on a cloud, but to get through the day, you also need to remain grounded in reality. A partner or loved one can offer practical advice that could really help you in an unusual situation.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may feel like it is your job to entertain guests and amuse visitors; go ahead and be the court jester if you're in the mood. Do not be surprised if other people follow your lead especially when risk-taking or daring is involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Turn over a new leaf or try some new tactics and you will see there is more than one way to make your dreams come true. You may need to work a little harder and smarter to live up to others' expectations, but you can benefit from it too.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Drop-in guests or a neighborly gift might be a pleasant surprise when you welcome others into your family circle. You might find your loved ones may be in an especially attentive and affectionate mood for at least part of the weekend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Put your best self on display when you are out in public. Someone's attitude might become chilly just when you thought the relationship was going well. Do not let a possible misunderstanding or social blunder undermine your confidence.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Display your wisdom. With so much warmth and cheerfulness in the air, it can be easy to forgive someone and let bygones be bygones. It's always enjoyable to be in a group where you feel you have an admiring audience.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — If you extend an apology, it may be accepted. This is a good time to mend fences and find a way to fulfill a promise. Flipping a coin can help decide whether to focus on frustrating tasks or take a detour and attend a social event.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You cannot always ignore trying situations, but you can accept them with grace and a sense of perspective. It may be too easy to just repeat the past when you should be looking ahead and working toward a better future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — You and a loved one might not always agree completely, but you can respect each other's opinions. Although you may not receive as much company as expected, you likely can enjoy social events and entertainments without worry.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — There can be many chances to say something nice about someone and look for positive aspects to any situation. You could be a cheerful and inspiring philosopher and reassure others who are struggling to rise above their concerns.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You might start to form a new friendship with someone from a different background and briefly feel envious of their lifestyle. If you are only brushing the surface, you won't have a clear perspective until you know them well over time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — If you are really not in the mood, social activities may feel more like work than fun. You might be expected to visit relatives or have extra chores to complete. Appreciate a loved one's capacity for generosity and kindness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You may see an increase in social activities in the near future so be ready to arrive looking your best. There could be a misunderstanding between you and a loved one that causes a rift. This could be a good time to offer apologies and make things right.

At 20, Harvey emerging as young US women's hockey star

BY JOHN WAWROW
AP HOCKEY WRITER

Some six years later, Caroline Harvey finds it much easier reflecting back to when the sting of homesickness began to sink in after her parents dropped her off to attend the Selects Hockey Academy in Rochester, New York, at 14.

The decision to move some 400 miles from her New Hampshire home and pursue Harvey's dream of playing hockey came at a crossroads of her development. Girls hockey programs were limited in the Salem area, and the boys team Harvey played on was breaking up with everyone going their separate ways to attend high school.

"I was definitely in shock and still a pretty young girl at the time," Harvey said. "I still remember that day. But, yeah, I've come a long way since then."

It's a journey that's taken Harvey to the 2022 Beijing Winter Games, the world championships in Denmark last summer, to winning an NCAA championship in her freshman year at Wisconsin last month, with many more projected stops to come for the slick-skating, play-making defender gaining acclaim as one of the United States women's national team's rising stars.

"I can't say enough about her," U.S. coach John Wroblewski told The Associated Press on Monday after the Americans arrived in suburban Toronto for the world championships, which they opened with a 7-1 over Japan on Wednesday.

"I know she's only 20 years old, but she went from being a girl at the Olympics to a young woman with a national championship under her belt," he added "She's arrived as a winner. And I expect her to continue to climb in that department. As the team grows, she's going to be a huge part of how that happens."

Against Japan, Harvey quarterbacked the power play, used her speed in elevating the Americans' push through the neutral zone, and had two assists, including a no-look pass to set up Hannah Bilka's goal to make it 5-1.

This is the free-wheeling style Wroblewski expected from Harvey upon taking over as coach last summer. And it comes after Harvey endured one of the biggest disappointments of her young career in receiving limited playing time as Beijing Winter Games progressed with former coach Joel Johnson's decision to lean more heavily on his veterans.

That changed with Wrobolwski's arrival, who placed an emphasis on increasing Harvey's ice time, while informing her to play without fear of making mistakes to build her game and confidence.

"That was super important especially, because I felt the year before I was playing in a way where I was trying to avoid making mistakes," said Harvey, who led U.S. defenders in Denmark with three goals and finished second with eight points. "It was good not to play scared."

The boost in confidence carried over into her first season at Wisconsin. Harvey finished fourth among the nation's freshmen with 39 points in 41 games, was named the WCHA's rookie of the year, and became the Badgers' first freshman to earn All-America honors since Meghan Hunter in 2001.

Of Harvey's 13 goals, three were game-winners including an overtime goal to seal Wisconsin's 3-2 win over Minnesota in the Frozen Four's semifinal. Pinching in from the right point, Harvey accepted a pass on her backhand, pivoted to her forehand and snapped a shot into the top right corner.

It's a goal Wisconsin coach Mark Johnson has replayed several times to appreciate the talent it took for Harvey to score.

"I had to go back and, one, figure out how long she was on the ice, and then get the puck and load it up and hit something," Johnson said, noting it was similar to goals Harvey scored in regular season wins over Minnesota and Bemidji State.

"She's sort of got the 'It' factor," said Johnson, who has won seven national championships in 21 years at Wisconsin, and helped develop the likes of U.S. and Canadian national team stars such as Hilary Knight, Meghan Duggan, Brianna Decker and Sarah Nurse. "She can get up north and south real fast, but her movement from left to right, I mean, I've not seen that on the female side like I see it in her."

Knight, a member of the ESPN broadcasting crew at the Frozen Four, was wowed by Harvey's goal and impressed with how she's raised her game.

"Her potential is just incredible. It's off the charts," Knight said. "It's scary to see what she can be in a few years because she's already there now."

Harvey's had a knack to elevate her game at each new level. The challenge now is continuing to ascend though practice and focus, something Johnson said he saw in Harvey's dedication to working out while juggling the added pressures of attending school.

Harvey has been driven to succeed since she was first drawn to hockey at 3, when her father would bring her along to watch her brother play. In that time, she's dealt with bouts of homesickness, adapting to new environments and teammates, and overcome the personal frustrations at Beijing, while in the meantime reminding herself she's just 20.

"Yeah, there's been lot of curveballs thrown in different ways, but I've been dealing with it actually pretty good and trying to adjust to whatever situation," Harvey said. "I'm not obviously done and satisfied with where I'm at. And I know I can make big gains in the future, too."

Quickley, Grimes lead Knicks past Pacers 138-129

BY MARK
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Immanuel Quickley scored 39 points, one shy of his career high, and Quentin Grimes had a career-high 36 in the New York Knicks' 138-129 victory over the Indiana Pacers on Wednesday night.

Obi Toppin added 32 points and the Knicks shot 52%. Mitchell Robinson finished with 14 points and 16 rebounds.

It was Robinson's game that most impressed Knicks coach Tom Thibodeau.

"Mitch had a monster game," Thibodeau said. "The rebounding with Mitchell was unbelievable."

Thibodeau said this was likely Grimes' best game of the season.

"He's shooting the ball with a lot of confidence," Thibodeau said. "He's flying around the the floor, guarding people. His confidence is growing game by game. They are rhythm shots and that's what I like about the way we are playing right now. We are creating rhythm for each other. When you play like that good things will come from that."

Jalen Smith scored 19 points for Indiana, T.J. McConnell had 18 and Bennedict Mathurin 17. McConnell had 12 assists.

The Knicks had a 52-37 rebounding edge.

The game went back and forth for much of the fourth quarter. With it tied at 120, Toppin started a 7-0 run with two dunks and Grimes added a 3-pointer.

"Obi ran the floor well and got us some easy buckets," Thibodeau said. "He's hard to match up with what he can do. He continued to play to his strengths and his teammates' strengths."

With New York leading 97-91 in the third quarter, the Knicks used a 8-0 run, helped by a flagrant foul call, to take a 105-91 lead. The Pacers ended the third quarter with a 7-0 spurt.

The Knicks shot nearly 52% to take a 70-67 lead at halftime. Toppin scored 19 of his points in the first half. Indiana shot 50% in the first half.

After the Pacers took a 7-4 lead, the Knicks reeled off 17 unanswered point to grab control. The Pacers tied it twice late in the second quarter.

"We were down 14 points after five minutes," Pacers coach Rick Carlisle said. "The second unit did a good job getting us back into the game. This is a great experience for the young guys that started. We got to learn from it as a group."

McConnnell's play coming off the bench helped the Pacers to get back in the game. "I run out of adjectives to describe his competitive excellence," Carlisle said.

The Pacers and Knicks close the regular season in New York on Sunday. The Knicks have won the first three meetings between the two teams.

"We have to look to New Orleans now," Thibodeau said of Friday night game. "We want to play our best going into the postseason."

TIP-INS

Knicks: With the No. 5 seed playoff spot clinched, Jalen Brunson sat out to rest his right hand. RJ Barrett missed his second consecutive game with an illness. … Julian Randle, who leads the Knicks with 25.1 points per game, continued to sit out with a left ankle sprain injury. Randle injured his angle March 29 and it's uncertain whether he will be ready to play when playoff series with No. 4 seed Cleveland begins.

Pacers: With the Pacers' slim playoff hopes ending Sunday, Indiana leaned heavily on its younger players and reserves. Tyrese Haliburton missed his fifth consecutive game with an ankle injury. Myles Turner missed his sixth game in a row with left ankle and lower backs soreness. … Gabe York made his first appearance of the season for the Pacers. York, who signed a two-way contract last week was called up from the Fort Wayne Ants. York scored nine points.

Houston mayor trade barbs after Final Four

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HARTFORD, Conn. — Connecticut's governor took a shot at the city of Houston following the NCAA Tournament's Final Four, which was held in that city last weekend.

Gov. Ned Lamont, who traveled to Houston and was on hand Monday night to watch the University of Connecticut men's basketball team win its fifth NCAA Tournament championship, talked about his visit earlier this week on WPLR-FM's Chaz and AJ show.

"After winning the semifinals, you walk around downtown Houston, which is butt ugly," the Democrat said. "Not much there."

Houston Mayor Sylvester Turner, also a Democrat, responded that he did not appreciate the governor "throwing shade" at his city after it went to the trouble to "feed you, dine you, host you, house you."

Vosler's three-run blast lifts Reds past Cubs 7-6

BY JEFF WALLNER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Jason Vosler, a non-roster invitee to spring training, hit a go-ahead three-run home run, his second of the season, as the Cincinnati Reds held off the Chicago Cubs 7-6 on Monday. Cody Bellinger collected his first hit as a Cub: a three-run home run in the first.

"It is so much fun just to watch Jason (Vosler)," Reds manager David Bell said. "He didn't even start the game but he stayed ready. He is excited to show what kind of player he is. He winds up being a big part of a great win."

Derek Law stranded the tying and go-ahead runners in the ninth to earn his first save since 2019. Alex Young (1-0) earned the victory.

Bellinger, who was 0-for-11 to begin his Cubs career, launched a 3-1 pitch from Connor Overton with two runners aboard in the first to make the score 3-0.

But it was a rough first inning for Drew Smyly (0-1) too, as the Reds pounded out four straight singles, driving in three runs to tie the score.

Hosmer's two-run double off left-hander Young in the fifth put the Cubs ahead 6-4. He was 0-for-7 coming into the game.

Vosler who entered the game as a pinch-runner in the second, hit a go-ahead, three-run home run off Smyly to put the Reds ahead 7-6.

Vosler, a former Cubs minor-leaguer. has two home runs and four extra-base hits in 11 at-bats since making the club.

WELCOME BACK

Former Reds catcher Tucker Barnhart was honored with a video tribute in the first inning. Barnhart made 744 appearances for the Reds. He was signed as a free agent by the Cubs in December.

CUBS 12, REDS 5

Patrick Wisdom doubled twice and had three hits and three RBIs, leading the Chicago Cubs over the Cincinnati Reds 12-5 on Tuesday night to even their three-game series.

Wisdom's two-run single highlighted a six-run seventh inning that overcame a 3-2 deficit. Chicago had 16 hits, including four doubles.

Cody Bellinger went 3 for 5 with an RBI, a day after hitting a three-run homer that ended his 0-for-11 start with the Cubs.

Ian Happ went 3 for 4 with a tying double.

Jason Vosler, TJ Friedl and Stuart Fairchild homered for the Reds, who wasted a 3-1 lead. Vosler hit hit third homer in three games and Fairchild hit his first career pinch homer, a two-run drive in the eighth off Adbert Alzolay (1-0).

After going ahead in a first inning that included Jake Fraley's RBI single, the Cubs didn't get another hit off Luis Cessa until the sixth, when Wisdom doubled to chase the starter and scored on Eric Hosmer's single off Ian Gibaut to cut the deficit to 3-2.

Nico Hoerner doubled off Buck Farmer (0-2) leading off the seventh, Dansby Swanson walked and Happ doubled in the tying run.

Reiver Sanmartin relieved, Cody Bellinger walked. Trey Mancini singled for a 4-3 lead and Wisdom followed with a two-run single.

> "It is so much fun just to watch Jason (Vosler). He didn't even start the game but he stayed ready. He is excited to show what kind of player he is. He winds up being a big part of a great win."
>
> — David Bell
> Reds manager

After Hosmer reached on a fielding error by second baseman Jonathan India, Yan Gomes bounced into a run-scoring double play that increased the lead to 7-3. Miles Mastrobuoni added an RBI single,

Wisdom and Hosmer added RBI doubles in a three-run eighth.

CINCY KID

Happ who attended the University of Cincinnati, raised his career batting average against the Reds to .296. In Great American Ball Park, he's hitting .322. "I see it well here, and I've been able to see it well for a few years now," Happ said. "I went to school here. I'm comfortable here. My mom's always here. So, all credit to mom."

WEB GEM

Reds left fielder Will Benson extended his glove above the wall and into the stands in foul territory to catch Hosmer's pop fly to end the fourth.

"When the ball went out to left, I thought is it in, maybe no, but I was very happy," said Cessa. "It was a great catch by Benson."

CUBS AT REDS POSTPONED

Wednesday's game between the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs at Great American Ball Park was postponed due to rain and rescheduled as part of a split doubleheader on Friday, Sept. 1.

The Cincinnati area was under a tornado watch with a line of strong storms expected in the afternoon.

Game 1 (the rescheduled game) will begin at 1:10 p.m. ET. Game 2 Game 2 (the original game) will start at 6:40 p.m. ET. Both games of the split doubleheader will be nine-inning regulation games.

ON THE MOVE

The Reds selected from Triple-A Louisville the contract of right-hander RHP Kevin Herget to be used in long relief. In other moves Wednesday, right-hander Joel Kuhnel was optioned to Triple-A and left-hander Bennett Sousa was designated for assignment.

NASCAR, teams at 'significant impasse' over charters

BY JENNA FRYER
AP AUTO RACING WRITER

NASCAR has said it is willing to work with the teams on financial security, and reiterated that commitment Wednesday after no owners showed for the meeting.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — A top group of NASCAR team owners skipped a meeting with series officials Wednesday with the two sides at an impasse over permanent charters, a key plank in the business model of the stock car series.

Fearing the meeting would be "hijacked" by conversation solely on the charters — multimillion-dollar guarantees of having a car in NASCAR's top Cup Series — the team owner council told NASCAR it felt talks should be postponed.

NASCAR said it planned to hold the meeting anyway, but the teams did not attend, said Curtis Polk, a part owner of 23XI Racing and one of four members of a negotiating committee that is trying to hammer out a new business plan for the nation's top racing series.

"It was evident that if we got the whole group together, that was going to be the only topic that anyone wanted to talk about and that is generally not constructive," said Dave Alpern, president of Joe Gibbs Racing. Alpern, Polk, Jeff Gordon of Hendrick Motorsports and Steve Newmark of RFK Racing are the members of the council representing all teams.

The owners went public last October with their frustration over what they consider a broken business model in which racetracks and NASCAR make the bulk of the money and teams are forced to fund their organizations through outside sponsorship.

In a telephone interview with The Associated Press, Alpern and Polk said significant progress has been made with NASCAR on many key issues but the two sides have reached a "significant impasse" on the charters.

NASCAR in 2016 adopted a charter system for 36 cars that is as close to a franchise model as possible in a sport that was founded by and independently owned by the France family. The charters give the teams something of value to hold — or sell — and protect their investment in the sport.

The charters are both renewable — the current ones expire at the end of the 2024 season — and revocable by NASCAR if a team fails to perform over a predetermined length of time. The race teams want the charters to become permanent, and NASCAR apparently is unwilling to even discuss the issue.

"It's the foundation that everything else is built upon. If they gave you the moon, but they're able to take it away from you periodically, what good is having the moon?" Polk told AP.

NASCAR has said it is willing to work with the teams on financial security, and reiterated that commitment Wednesday after no owners showed for the meeting.

"NASCAR is committed to open and productive dialogue on a regular basis with all industry stakeholders," NASCAR said in a statement. "We remain committed to continuing discussions in the spirit of collaboration and with the shared goal of growing our sport for the benefit of all stakeholders."

The breakdown happened after the entire Race Team Alliance held a call Tuesday to discuss topics for the smaller meeting with NASCAR. The RTA is comprised of all 16 teams and teams can have as many representatives as they choose on those calls.

When it became apparent on the call with 50-plus participants that permanent charters was the only issue the RTA wanted addressed, the smaller negotiating committee advised NASCAR that its meeting should be delayed. The meetings with NASCAR are limited to one team owner and one executive from each of the 16 chartered teams.

Asked what happens next, Polk said "we're ready to meet. We want to make a deal." But he reiterated that talks must open on permanent charters.

Alpern and Polk declined to discuss specifics on how teams have gained traction with NASCAR during months of negotiations.

NASCAR has maintained that teams receive about 40% of industry-wide generated revenue.

The financial split from the $8.2 billion media rights deal signed ahead of the 2015 season sends 65% to the tracks, 25% to the teams and 10% to NASCAR, according to the series. There are two major track operators, NASCAR and Speedway Motorsports; NASCAR owns the majority of the venues on the Cup Series schedule, including the crown jewel Daytona International Speedway, and the France family owns NASCAR.

Teams have argued they have become "full-time fundraisers" seeking sponsorship to keep their organizations afloat and the only possible place to make further financial cuts is through layoffs.

The teams revealed last October that sponsorship covers 60% to 80% of the budgets for all 16 chartered organizations. Because sponsorship is so vital, teams are desperate for financial relief elsewhere and have asked NASCAR for help to cover baseline costs.

NASCAR President Steve Phelps in February told AP that he was confident a resolution could be found.

"We have said publicly and we will continue to say publicly that we need to have financially healthy race teams," Phelps said then. "Financially healthy race teams will put a better product on the racetrack and that's great for the sport overall."

The current charter agreement expires at the same time that NASCAR's current television deals expire. NASCAR is in an exclusive negotiating window with both Fox Sports and NBC Sports on renewals. The exclusive period expires May 1, Phelps told AP, and NASCAR can explore television rights deals with outside partners after that date.
